

Changed Feelings

By

Marc Friedrich

marc@bluelight-interactive.com

Breslauer Strasse 41
92507 Nabburg
Germany

The TEACHER gives a lesson in the classroom. The FEMALE STUDENT is very interested in the lesson, but the MALE STUDENT is not.

The Teacher turns around to the white board and begins to write something. The Male Student puts out his smartphone and looks to a picture of the Female Student because he likes her. The Female Student looks very lovely to the Teacher because she likes him very much.

The Teacher turns around for a second and recognises that the Male Student looks at his smartphone. The Teacher claps his hands and show to the Male Student that he has to leave the classroom.

The Male Student is not happy about that and does not understand the reaction of the Teacher. But he grabs his stuff and leaves the room.

The lesson continues and the Female Student gets to the Teacher and tries to show him that she wants more from him, but the Teacher shows her that this is not possible because he is her teacher. She leaves the room.

She is outside the room and looks disappointed. The Male Student sees that and walks towards her. He comforts her and she recognises that he was there all the time. She hugs him a bit more and smiles. Both goes away hand in hand.